OLQP MISSION STATEMENT

Our Lady Queen of Peace Catholic Church is dedicated to witnessing the teachings of Jesus Christ, especially the Gospel of Saint Matthew, Chapter 25:31-46. Our mission is to nurture the spirit and to encourage the potential of those we serve through liturgical celebration, educational endeavors and social ministries. The parish will continue to identify with its origin as a Black parish. As a multi-ethnic congregation we will seek to promote racial harmony and social justice. While our primary focus is within the immediate community, we will also work to provide for the well-being of the downtrodden everywhere. In this we strive for our parish community to be a caring, sharing, and loving family.

MADAME JOSEPH JONEL is the principal of Our Lady of Perpetual Help chapel school in La Source. She has been principal since the school started in 2011. This school has the highest percentage of female staff and students, compared to the other two chapel schools of St. Joseph parish of Medor. Eight of her 16 staff are women, including three teachers and supervisor. This is unusual in Haiti and many other countries where women are expected to stay home and take care of the family. Please pray for our Medor family.

Striving to right our relationships with God, Others and Creation

JUST A THOUGHT OR TWO... This weekend's readings challenge us to understand "the other" as "ourselves". The concept of "otherness" is a reality that allows for discrimination, persecution, racial and ethnic profiling ...for hatred of "others"! When we fail to see our common humanity then we are able to believe that we are "different" from one another and then we see them as "other". This concept of "other" often creates a situation where the one who is "other" is dehumanized and degraded. Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream...a dream where everyone was equal...where there were no "others"...only "us"! This dream of MLK's was a "Kingdom dream"...the Kingdom of God...and he saw this dream because he had "Kingdom vision"...Martin Luther King lived as if "the Kingdom of God" was here and now! In the Gospel we hear this weekend Jesus tells us to be very careful about who we believe is on the inside and who is outside...because we might be the ones who end up on the outside! It is a "cautionary tale" of "otherness"! Jesus is seeking to tell us that there is no "other"...we are all the children of God...including all the migrants and immigrants around the world, counting those at our southern border! We are all "sisters and brothers"! Each and every one of us is connected...as Martin Luther King proclaimed whatever happens to one of us happens to all of us! Imagine if we lived like that...that is what Jesus did for us on the cross! What am I willing to do to break down the barriers that separate me from "the other"? Do I really believe that "we" are all God's children and loved equally by God? What does that mean for me? How might that challenge how I live my life? Who do I see as "other"?

Blessings,
Fr Tim

RITE OF CHRISTIAN INITIATION OF ADULTS (RCIA)

How can I develop a deeper relationship with God through prayer? How can I integrate faith and work responsibilities? If you are interested in learning more about the Catholic faith and practices, the RCIA is for you!

- Inquirers: The process is open to all those interested in learning about the Catholic tradition and considering joining the church, and those who are seeking to be confirmed. A new group is now forming, and our journey begins with a "no-strings" inquiry session on Thursday, Sept. 19.
- Sponsors and Companions on the Journey: We are seeking members of our community who are willing to support our candidates during the RCIA journey. This can take several forms: journeying with a specific individual during the coming year as a sponsor or supporting one of our candidates through prayer and periodic messages of support. Companions are not required to attend our weekly RCIA sessions.

For additional information about becoming an inquirer and/or to volunteer to serve as a sponsor or companion, please contact Alice or Kevin Curtin at 703-461-3082 or acurtin947@aol.com.

Singing 'Amor Eterno' Feels Different Now

By Aaron E. Sanchez

The community was devastated. 22 lay dead. 26 wounded. The words of the psalmists, of Job, of Jeremiah all fell short. The words they needed, the verses they sought were those of JuanGa. The community sang: Como quisiera / que tú vivieras / que tus ojitos jamás se hubieran / cerrado nunca y estar mirándolos. / Amor eterno. (How I wish / that you were still alive / that your eyes had never / ever closed and I was looking at them. / Eternal love).

“Amor Eterno,” or Eternal Love, was written in 1984 by the famed Mexican singer and song writer Juan Gabriel, or JuanGa, after his mother passed away. It has become a standard that is played at funerals, wakes, get-togethers, and even restaurants across the U.S., Mexico, and the world to remember family and loved ones who have passed away.

The song has become an expression of popular faith. Individuals sing the song together, remembering the people they have lost. It is a shared ritual in public spaces where mourning binds them together.

Singing “Amor Eterno” is in the tradition of lamenting throughout the Hebrew Bible. In Lamentations, the author cries: “I am the one who has seen affliction ... my soul is bereft of peace; I have forgotten what happiness is.” (Lamentations 3:1,17,18.)

In “Amor Eterno,” they sing: Yo he sufrido mucho por tu ausencia / desde ese día hasta hoy, no soy feliz / y aunque tengo tranquila mi conciencia / yo sé que pude haber yo hecho más por ti (I have suffered so much because of your absence / since that day to today, I am not happy / and even though my conscience is clear / I know I could have done more for you).

The psalmist moans, “For my soul is full of troubles, and my life draws near to Sheol ... I am shut in so that I cannot escape; my eye grows dim through sorrow ... my companions are in darkness” (Psalm 88:3,9,18).

In “Amor Eterno,” they weep together: Ojos que hayan derramado tantas lágrimas por penas / de dolor / ... soledad, eso es todo lo que tengo ahora y tus recuerdos / que hace más triste la angustia de vivir pensando como siempre en ti / ojos que te vieron tanto y que no han vuelto a verte (eyes that have spilled so many tears of sorrow / of pain / ... solitude, is all that I am left with now and your memories / that make the grief of living always thinking of you even sadder / eyes, that saw you so much and will not see you again).

When the verses and chorus are sung for individuals lost to old age, or cancer, or to the daily ways that we may all leave our loved ones, it is a faithful, hopeful, act of consolation. Releasing the sorrow into the air was central in the healing. The sorrow needed to be let out and breathed in by those around us, stranger and friend alike, so that it does not stagnate within. The song was an essential rite for many. And that was why it was played over and over in so many different places and situations. In the midst of these laments, pleadings, prayers there was a reluctant hope in the eternal love in the chorus. The bereaved wanted to believe that one day they would be together and that there is a type of love that lives past the grave.

But singing the song now, in the context of a hate crime targeting Latinos that took the lives of 22 people, of yet another mass shooting, it becomes something else. The lyrics change. Sang collectively, it moves beyond lamentation. It rings of desperation and resignation. The verses haunt. Oscura soledad estoy viviendo yo / La misma soledad de tu sepulcro . (This dark solitude that I am living / the same solitude of your tomb.)

The imperfect subjunctive is transformed in the chorus — como quisiera. The unlikely or impossible event the conjugation is typically used for changes from the loved one not dying, to society doing something to prevent future deaths. Family and community members sang together “como quisiera que tú vivieras,” but the words had changed. To an extent it was an admission that we wished they were alive, but there is nothing we will do to keep people from dying in mass shootings in this country. This is the state of things. Nothing will change. Nothing happens.

It is right and holy and wholly necessary to mourn. In this case, it should have been wholly unnecessary for the community of El Paso to mourn. Just like thoughts and prayers have been perverted by lip service to a supposed faith, so too has an important rite that has been so significant to this community been twisted.

I wish, I pray that this is the last time we have to sing this song at a memorial for a Latino community attacked by hate, but I don't know. Como quisiera ...
